

S5-P.1

Telemedicine - Advanced Technology at the Service of Society

E. Arama¹, S. Maximilian², L. Rotaru¹, and V. Vovc¹

¹*State University of Medicine and Pharmacy "Nicolae Testemitanu", Chisinau, Moldova*

²*State University of Moldova, Chisinau, Moldova*

In the conditions of the information society advanced technologies penetrate into different spheres of human activity, including medicine. In the medical field, three branches of telemedicine have already been formed: synchronous telematics, asynchronous telemetry and remote monitoring. Economic calculations demonstrate the efficacy of telemedicine that has benefits for the entire society, both for healthcare beneficiaries and their providers.